Art Unit: 3683

1. Applicant's election with traverse of Group I, Species I in Paper No. 7 is acknowledged. The traversal is on the ground(s) that the species and groups are closely related. This is not found persuasive because the multitude of inventions would require a wider area of search and thus create undue burden.

The requirement is still deemed proper and is therefore made FINAL.

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) or (e) as being anticipated by Wakui et al. '622.

Wakui et al. show a vibration control unit utilizing feedback control. The table is considered to be the inertial load.

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 4-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wakui et al. '622.

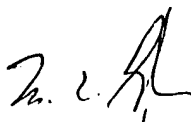

Art Unit: 3683

As to claims 4-12, the claimed invention differs only in the mathematical computation for controlling the device. Because Wakui et al. performs the same function as claimed, the method of programming would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art as mere matters of programming. The variety of methods for programming recited have not been shown to have nay criticality.

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Schubert and Boichot et al. show active dampers.

7. Any inquiry concerning this communication should be directed to Mr. Graham at telephone number (703) 308-1113.
